

HOW TO CELEBRATE

OTHER WAYS TO ENGAGE

If you are a school, bookseller, publisher, library, business, organisation or individual, you can also contribute and celebrate Indigenous Literacy Day by:

- Hosting a Great Book Swap. This is a very popular, fun and simple fundraising activity. Participants simply bring in their favourite book, swap it for another and donate a note to the ILF. In the spirit of sharing, reusing, social cohesion and fundraising for a great cause, a Great Book Swap is a fabulous activity to host on Indigenous Literacy Day.
- Holding a fundraising event of your choice. Whether it is a bake sale, a physical challenge or a morning tea, every $10 raised for the ILF, puts a book into the hands of a child in remote Australia.

- Invite a local Elder to your place of work for morning tea and ask them to share a story about the local history, culture, language and Land.
- Learn more about First Languages and some words from the Country your place of work is located. First Languages Australia's Gambay interactive map is a great place to start.
- Start a book club and encourage colleagues to read and discuss a book by a First Nations author - think Bila Yarrudhanggalangdhuray by Anita Heiss, Taboo by Kim Scott or The White Girl by Tony Birch.
- Donating a percentage of your product sales on Indigenous Literacy Day. This is a great way to promote your support for Indigenous literacy to your customers and clients.
- Purchasing ILF-published books written by remote Community authors and illustrators from our shop. This is an ideal present for a child or young adult to celebrate Indigenous Literacy Day.
- Buying an ILF t-shirt, tote bag or books for your staff or students. A royalty goes to the artists or authors and profits go to the Foundation.
- Becoming a regular giver or set up workplace giving.
- Become an ILF partner.
- Advocating for us on social media. Please tag @IndigenousLiteracyFoundation on Facebook and Instagram, and @IndigenousLF on Twitter.
- Making a donation through our website.
- Making a donation with a Give the Gift of Reading card. Donate $50 or $100 to receive a beautiful card illustrated by children from Milikapiti and Bidyadanga Communities.
